TO ADVERTISERS.

MR. MERCHANT, the public has been harassed too long. Its ears are ringing. Its eyes are weary with following wild gestures of inexperienced, amateur advertisers. Its intelligence has been insulted too often. Its credulity stretched too far. Readers turn with relief to my low-voiced, moderate, non-exaggerated advertisements, booklets, circulars, business letters, etc., because they appeal to reason. The public weighs words carefully, and the balance swings toward the more solid ones. Let me show you the "difference" in advertising. Terms reasonable. George M. Zeilner, care of Kingston Freeman.

STEAMER SIBERIA ARRIVES SAFELY

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Manila Bay, May 2.—A big crowd of persons gathered at the pier of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company today and cheered the passengers of the liner Siberia, which had been reported wrecked off the southern coast of Formosa. The Siberia drew into her dock at 11 o'clock putting an end to the suspense which even wireless messages from the ship had been unable to allay entirely.

Captain A. Zeeder, of the Siberia, could only account for the wireless reports of disaster to his ship by the fact that the weather was thick, making wireless communication difficult and liable to misinterpretation.

The passengers were greeted enthusiastically by friends and relatives, whose fears had been aroused to the highest pitch by reports indicating the loss of the vessel.

Among the first to land was Mrs. Francis Burton Harrison, wife of the American governor general of the Philippines.

Tokyo, May 2.—The Japanese government steamship Kanto Maru and the British cruiser Minotaur are cruising off the southern coast of Formosa today to learn whether or not the wireless reports relating to the wreck of the Siberia might not have referred to some other ship. The belief is strong in marine circles, however, that the supposed "S. O. S." from the Siberia was really the call signal of the steamer Persia, namely "M. B. S." and that it was misread by the wireless operator at Osezakai because of the thick weather.

SPECIAL SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., May 2.—Summoned by wire and by special messenger, members of the legislature assembled here this morning.

The session was called to order by Governor Glynn at 10 o'clock. The members of the legislature were divided as to the duration of the session. The law makers, but the general impression prevails that the financial deadlock which was caused at the tail end of the regular session over the failure of the senate and assembly to agree as to the contents of the appropriation and supply bills, is likely to continue.

While Governor Glynn has declared that only financial matters will be recommended to the legislature by him, it will not be unexpected if measures covering other topics are taken up. Among the subjects other than finance which may be brought to the attention of the members of the senate and assembly are those bearing upon electric and primary reform. It is also generally understood that war matters will be discussed to the end that a special appropriation for the state militia will be passed.

Having taken stand in favor of eliminating the departments of the state fire marshal and the state department of efficiency and economy, the Republican majority in the lower house has shown no disposition to alter that stand to date. It is possible that Republicans of independent tendency who voted with the "old guard" to abolish the two departments in question, may break away and change their votes when it becomes a settled fact that a long fear is entertained by some of the prominent members of the Barnes machine.

The annual appropriation and supply bills will have to be re-passed after a compromise has been effected, as will the bill—a new departure this year—known as the construction and repair bill. The latter measure was drafted to carry a sufficient appropriation for repairs at state institutions.

It is the claim of the Republicans that the Democrats have made no attempt to accomplish retrenchments. They point out that the financial bill as prepared or provided by the assembly was materially padded.

Major Chandler reported progress on his military staff. He said he had some "good dope" on uniforms and believed that his police force, which will be one strong, will be ready for duty patrolling the reservoir section this summer.

With the new device working, the city will have pure drinking water this summer.

Commissioner Roach moved that the board take up the five $1,000 bonds falling due in 1915. Carried. This is all of the bonds falling due in that year.

Who Owns These Mains. Superintendent Harrison called the attention of the board to the pipe line running to Kingston Point Park. He said that starting from the corner of North street and running to the Point the line was only six inches underground. During the winter the water froze and the pipes burst. He also called attention to the pipe line running to the golf grounds and said that from the end of O'Reilly street there was a long line of pipe on top of the ground. These two lines of pipe cost the board more than the revenue received as during the winter the pipes were continually bursting. He said that he did not know if the pipe lines were owned by the water board or not.

After some discussion the board directed Superintendent Harrison to investigate and report back to the board.

Sprinkler System for Factory. Superintendent Harrison read a communication from the H. G. Vogel Company requesting information in regard to the cost of installing a sprinkler fire system in the New Columbia shirt factory on O'Neil street. Mr. Harrison said the company wanted information in regard to installing two sprinklers so that it would be in a position to quote the shirt factory prices. He was of the opinion that the board should only allow one connection. The matter was finally left with Mr. Harrison to take up with the Vogel Company.

Inspectors' Reports. Inspector Murphy reported for April, 137 inspections; leaks found and repaired 2; read and tested 135 meters; found 1 meter out of order and it had been since repaired; contractors found doing work without a water permit 1, and he had been notified; faucets connected 18; baths 7; toilets 9; laundry tubs 6.

Inspector O'Neil reported for April 60 inspections; new fixtures 3; old fixtures discontinued, 10; new taps made 16; new buildings reported 6; leaks found 1; automobiles 10.

The following bills were audited and ordered paid: L. Bacarach, $247.97. New York Telephone Company, 15.62. Standard Oil Company, 8.30. Everett & Treadwell, 7.05. Matthews & Harrison, 27.60. Myron S. Teller, 60.00. Cashier, 38.19. Rensselaer Valve Co., 194.60. Florence Iron Works, 1,385.02. Van Etten & Hogan, 211.59. James M. Caird, 100.00. Abe Vogel, 185.00. Selickmaker & Dunlap, 6.00.

The board then adjourned.

Another Lunch Room. Frank Merritt has had a one story concrete building erected adjoining his office on Fair street which was opened today by Casey Brothers as a first class lunch room.

The Circus is Coming. The first advance car of the Barnum & Bailey Circus reached Kingston this morning. The circus will be here Saturday, May 23.

PLENTIFUL SUPPLY OF PURE WATER

Commissioners Hear Encouraging Reports of Progress in Bringing the City Water Supply up to Requirements.

With the reservoirs full to overflowing, 400,000,000 gallons in Cooper's Lake, and the work of erecting the building in which will be housed the coagulating and sterilizing device, insuring pure drinking water, underway, all fear of the water famine that threatened the city last summer seems remote. These facts were brought out at the regular monthly meeting of the board of water commissioners held at the city hall on Friday afternoon.

It is expected that the building will be completed and the device installed and working early in June. The contract for erecting the building was awarded a short time ago to C. Van Aken of Elmendorf street for $1,100 and he has already started the work of erecting the building at the filter house in Zena. It will be 31 by 32 feet and built of cut stone.

The contract for the coagulating device has been awarded to the New York Continental Jewel Filtration Company for $4,190, which will make the total cost of installation and housing the device $5,290.

Although not generally known, the city was threatened by a water famine last summer during the months of August and September when there was only two feet of available water in Cooper's Lake. In Reservoir No. 4 at that time there was not enough water to "drown a cat." To avoid a similar situation this year Superintendent Harrison was instructed to erect false dams on the reservoirs. These false dams are of wood and raise the height of the water three feet.

Owing to the unfavorable weather conditions Superintendent Harrison reported that the fence around Cooper's Lake had not been erected as yet.

Major Chandler reported progress on his military staff. He said he had some "good dope" on uniforms and believed that his police force, which will be one strong, will be ready for duty patrolling the reservoir section this summer.

With the new device working, the city will have pure drinking water this summer.

SPECIAL SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Kingston, N. Y., May 2.—Summoned by wire and by special messenger, members of the legislature for a special session of the legislature, arrived in Kingston this morning.

The session was opened at 10 o'clock by the reading of a message from Governor Glynn, in which he declared that only financial matters will be recommended to the legislature by him. It will not be unexpected if measures covering other topics are taken up. Among the subjects other than finance which may be brought to the attention of the members of the senate and assembly are those bearing upon electric and primary reform. It is also generally understood that war matters may be discussed to the end that a special appropriation for the state militia will be passed.

Having taken up the subject of eliminating the departments of the state fire marshal and the state department of efficiency and economy, the Republican majority in the lower house has shown no disposition to alter that stand to date. It is possible that Republicans of independent tendency who voted with the "old guard" to abolish the two departments in question, may break away and change their votes when it becomes a settled fact that a long drawn out session is imminent. This fear is entertained by some of the prominent members of the Barnes machine.

The annual appropriation and supply bills will have to be re-passed after a compromise has been effected, as will the bill—a new departure this year—known as the construction and repair bill. The latter measure was drafted to carry a similar appropriation for repairs at state institutions. It is the claim of the Republicans that the Democrats have made no attempt to accomplish retrenchments. They point out that the financial bill as prepared or provided by the assembly were materially passed.

As for an individual body lacking in authority to abolish either of the departments frowned upon by it, and that it is a function which cannot be shirked by that body to agree to a sufficient appropriation to continue both.

The assembly submitted to the senate an appropriation bill totalling $31,455,000; the senate raised the amount to $22,481,000. The supply bill as prepared by the assembly, totalling $1,978,000. This amount the Senate boosted to $2,500,000, but later cut considerably as was the case with the appropriation bill. Many departments beside those of the fire marshal and the efficiency and economy commissioners were affected by the pruning knife of the senate finance committee. To pass these bills as they now stand, would be a severe blow at the government of the state and is impossible.

The Republicans are willing to yield to the Democrats upon practically everything save the granting of substantial appropriations to the departments they desire to see eliminated.

The burden of responsibility for the extraordinary session will rest upon the party which yields, it is claimed. The fact that a state election takes place this fall, adds to the complexity of the situation at this time.

The failure of former Senator and Surrogate Schultz of the Bronx to qualify as a public service commissioner for the First district, may mean that the governor will send in a new nomination for that position during the forthcoming session.

Why is pure beer fast becoming the national food-drink and is supplanting, in degree, the use of strong drink and of tea and coffee?

Answer:

Simply for the reason that pure beer stimulates and strengthens, while tea and coffee merely stimulate, leaving nothing in payment for the tax upon energy.

MEDIATORS HOPE FOR GOOD RESULTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, May 2.—Peace conferences of the Latin-American mediators proceeded without halt today despite the refusal of Gen. Carranza to agree to the establishment of a neutral zone at Tampico. The mediators declared that Carranza was the only obstacle in the path of peace and admitted that his attitude might result in delay, but nevertheless asserted their confidence that they would ultimately reach a solution of the problem.

The chief basis of their confidence was the steady progress made in the settlement of the differences between the United States and Gen. Huerta. They had assurances of peace between the Dictator and the Washington government, they stated and the only discordant note in the otherwise perfect harmony of negotiations was the attitude of the supreme chief of the constitutionalists.

There was a marked abatement of war talk in Washington today and only occasionally did one hear the belligerent discussion that prevailed wherever men gathered a week or so ago.

Receipt of the news that Dr. Edward W. Ryan, the American physician reported to have been sentenced to death as a spy by Huerta forces, had been released, removed one cause for alarm on the part of the Washington government.

Carranza's refusal to consent to a neutral oil well zone at Tampico and his silence on the proposal for an armistice led to a belief that the hopefulness of the envoys from Argentina, Brazil and Chile might prove unfounded, but they kept at work, insisting that their advance had been steady and many obstacles already had been overcome.

One diplomat asserted that more had been accomplished by the South American mediators in a short time than ever before in the history of intermediation. He said: "In six days beginning April 26 the mediators have accomplished: First, the acceptance of good offices by the United States; second, the acceptance by Gen. Carranza; fourth, suspension of hostilities by the U. S.; fifth, suspension of hostilities by Huerta. These five accomplishments within six days are without precedent in international bodies which previously have exercised good offices."

There is little prospect that Carranza will agree to an armistice, according to the belief here. Constitutional representatives in Washington assert they cannot understand why they should suspend hostilities against Huerta. They point out that they practically have Huerta beaten and it would be folly for them to lay down their arms with victory in sight.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAY 2, 1914.

The "omnibus" trust bill backed by the Wilson administration is reported to be nearly ready for presentation to the Senate. It leaves the Sherman law unimpaired, by providing that none of its sections or definitions shall be construed as superseding that statute. An Interstate Trade Commission is created with supervisory powers over interlocking directorates, issues of stocks and bonds, etc. The courts are still a long way from having completed the interpretation of the Sherman law, and the new bill, if enacted, will complicate matters. Business men can look forward to additional years of delay, and the lawyers will wax fat on fees. No good will come to anybody except lawyers, since the existing law has proved itself able to accomplish all reasonable regulation.

The efforts of the South American mediators do not seem to have improved the Mexican situation perceptibly. All hands have accepted mediation "in principle," but they interpret the principle according to their individual liking. In vulgar parlance, their acceptances have strings to them. The Constitution-alists refuse to stop fighting, and the general opinion is that they will soon capture Huerta, unless the United States steps in to protect the man it refuses to recognize, which is only a fanciful possibility. If Huerta is caught he will be shot, just as Madero was. Thus Carranza will come to power through assassination, and the United States cannot recognize him without violating the precedent it has set. Messrs. Wilson and Bryan have put us in a situation more appropriate to the plot of a burlesque opera than to sober realities.

New York had a rather lively May Day, not the least interesting incident of which was the visit of a Socialist to Calvary Baptist Church with a demand that the pastor tell him whether "Jesus would uphold John D. Rockefeller in his attitude toward the Colorado strikers." The query remained unanswered, it being out of order from a parliamentary standpoint. Nevertheless, it is in order in a general way. It is presumptuous for any one to attempt to assert dogmatically what position Jesus Christ would take on modern questions if he were now on earth. However, inferences may be drawn from his recorded words. He told one rich man to distribute his goods among the poor, and he advised his followers in general to give whenever asked to do so. On the other hand, he said: "Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's," which might be interpreted to mean that strikers or others should not assault entrenched power. We difficultly express the opinion that Jesus would not approve of the course of any person now living, but that he would look tolerantly upon all and stick to his prescription as to what person should be authorized to throw the first stone.

A Denver business man in an interview in the New York Sun throws light upon the extraordinary situation in Colorado. In the first place, he makes it appear that the people of his State are not so low in moral tone and general decency as the happenings of the last year indicate. The State has been overrun by foreigners of a very undesirable type, many of them being anarchists and disturbers of the I. W. W. brand. They are prone to rioting and do not hold human life as particularly sacred. The atrocities committed by the National Guard, who are natives of the State and who represent the character of its best citizens, are explained by passion engendered by assaults made upon them while in the discharge of their duties. Hardly any man is able to maintain a calm temper when people are trying to kill him. The chief fault of the State of Colorado is the weakness and inefficiency with which it has met the crisis. This is explained by the business man as being due to the inevitable effects of woman suffrage. Everybody knows that the qualities necessary to win the favor of women are vastly different from those which attract the support of men. There is a marked difference between what we call a "ladies' man" and a man's man. Where woman votes a candidate naturally resorts to those arts which please the fair sex, expecting that men will vote more closely on party lines, so that every time they gain a woman supporter it is so much to the good. All employers prefer men's men to women's men, since they have more force and more sturdy convictions. Female suffrage means female men in office.

WHERE SYMPATHY IS DUE.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

Boys and girls in the same family many times are so widely apart in characteristics, tendencies, likes, dislikes, virtues and vices, that it is easy to understand the mighty differences that prevail in the great human family, without any regard to questions of environment. Given the very same setting, the same opportunities, the same everything that comes from without and some will grow and develop like beautiful flowers, while others will drift lower and lower until at last caught in the maelstrom of vice, sinking to everything bad and rising to nothing that bears even a semblance of the true.

Always when a great crime is committed, a crime that is merciless from first to last and that could not be committed by anyone with a particle of humanity in his heart, there are many to say that the culprit deserves not a vestige of sympathy, and that the severest penalty meted out by the law is not half heavy enough.

Showing no mercy, no pity at all, he is entitled to none, is the argument used; and sparing no suffering, none should be spared in return. And as for sympathy, it is all lost.

Just for the sake of expressing an opinion, it is idle enough for one or for the many to sentimentalize over criminals and let pity go forth rather abundantly; but when sentiment crystallizes into real effort to learn why a man or a woman is so lost to ordinary human impulses that he stands apart from the rest of the world, then it is wonderfully worth while.

Because, with jails and prison-houses overflowing with men and women lost to themselves and to the world, one of the greatest needs of the times is to learn what makes them so different. In looking upon them, their crimes and their repellent human make-up, the surface reveals so much that is forbidding that there is little temptation to penetrate farther and to ask what is back of it all. But we do not look far enough or sympathetically enough until we try to learn what hard hand has set upon a man or a woman the awful mark of the abnormal.

For an individual may live in a seemingly hopeless environment, and may be a victim of ill health, or ignorance, or poverty; yet, if there's the saving grace of a desire for something brighter and better, he emerges in one kind of triumph, at least, because he has no impulse to go wrong.

But when, through a sad trick of nature, through heredity, through some kind of a fateful blow, he stands on the bad edge of things and wants to stand there to the end, despicable, cruel and unnatural, not even knowing the meaning of mercy or sympathy and with no dread of crime except the fear of detection, then he is the neediest of all. For he has missed the greatest of humanity's rights—the heritage of a normal nature that permits a man to take his place in the world, one with the rest, respecting and respected, rather than hateful and hated.

And when, once in a while, we get a glimpse of a soul so ugly and distorted that no kind of environment can sweeten and straighten it, then when crime comes, along with the ugliness, it is instinctive for some critics to hope that a hardened nature like that may get "all it deserves."

Thankfully, we note there is a tendency to admit that men and women who stand on humanity's dreariest outskirts, because they are somehow created different and are vicious in their difference, deserve society's close attention, its pity and its care—its healing, if any may be. Because nobody knows whence or why the difference, and nobody ever will know until the tendency grows more general to trace the difference back to its source, if that may be done, and then to look for a remedy.

And while waiting for the tendency to spread, as spread it will in time, among criminologists and others who are honestly working to straighten out the kinks in crooked humanity, it looks rather hopeful, understanding, yes, and thankful for normal moral grace, when we, as individuals, recognize that the very worst of criminals "deserve" something more than punishment fitted to their crimes.

As "criminals by nature," they are branded with the worst kind of brand, for it is nature-imposed; and no amount of patient study devoted to that great human problem will be wasted if in the end we learn why the sad blight and what the kindly remedy. For in a world where the good and the evil almost touch elbows, society suffers as crime grows apace, and the criminals themselves miss their real birthright—a normal outlook upon life and a shrinking from crime.

"And that is the reason why some understanding folk have sympathy in their hearts for even the worst of criminals, sympathy and a prayer for the time when they may be helped to come into their own."

FRANCIS SHAFER.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

Teacher—Tommy, what is net income?
Thomas—"Fisherman's luck, teacher."—Buffalo Express.

"Is your daughter fond of music?"
"Terribly fond of it," replied Mr. Cumrox. "No matter how it sounds, she seems to like it."—Washington Star.

Kent—"Are you ever affected by the lingering notes of 'My Old Kentucky Home'?"
Kent—"No; but the lingering notes of my remodelled New England home frequently take a rise out of me."—Judge.

"You know what a boomerang is, don't you Johnnie?"
"No, ma'am."
"Why, a boomerang is something you throw out and after a little while it turns up and comes back." "Please, ma'am, it's something like 'The prodigal son, ain't it?'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"He gets exercise enough, Lord knows," said the observant citizen. "He's been running for office ever since the Civil War quit, and he hasn't got that yet. It would be a disappointment to him if he happened to run into the office by accident."—Atlanta Constitution.

The suburban car was waiting at a turnout for the car going in the opposite direction to come along. "It's shameful," complained an impatient woman passenger, "to have to be stopped here like this." "Well, ma'am," said the conductor calmly, "if you want to finish your trip in an ambulance we can go on and collide with the other car."—Boston Transcript.

"S'Matter, Pop?"

Though not considered absolutely correct in his attire, Senator John Sharp Williams does not pay particular attention to his gloves, his ties or whether a handkerchief is sticking sort of careless out of his pocket.

But the other morning he reached the limit of not caring, or, possibly, was too engrossed in certain measures to pass criticism upon himself in the hall mirror as he left his home for the Capitol.

When he came into his office, his clerks grinned, but said nothing thinking he knew his own business and didn't care to be reminded or advised to his appearance.

But it was Mrs. Williams who called up, presently, and asked one of the young men to please go over to the Senate and remind the Senator that he had worn their young son's raking straw hat down to the Capitol, and that the boy couldn't go to school, or wouldn't, till he had it!—Washington Star.

Winning Votes.

Representative J. W. Langley of Kentucky denounces writers who paint the mountaineers of his State as semi-barbarians and says they are the finest people in the land.

When Mr. Langley was campaigning during his last contest for the House he encountered one mountaineer who had not decided how to vote. He was "on the fence," but declared that if Langley could show him any good reason for voting in his favor it would be a pleasure to do so.

After a long talk it was agreed that the two men should run a race, the distance to be 50 yards. So Langley and the man met at the country store before an audience of neighbors and the match was pulled off. Langley is a heavy man, but he beat his antagonist by three yards.

When Langley got back from his tour a friend complained of his dilapidated appearance. "Well," retorted the member, "I guess you would look about as badly as I do if you had been compelled to sample every day 57 varieties of moonshine!"—Washington Star.

Called Home.

A noted clergyman whose pastorate is in a well-known city was spending a few days at the home of one of his congregations.

While seated on the piazza one afternoon with his hostess, her little boy and girl came running toward them; the former with a rat, held at arm's length by the tail. "Don't be afraid, mother," he called. "It is quite dead." We beat him and beat him!" each declaration being illustrated by an imaginary blow on the rat. Then, feeling a deference might be due the clergyman, he said, in measured, solemn tones and with uplifted eyes, "Yes, we beat him and beat him until—God-called—him—home."—Harper's Magazine.

Things Have Improved.

A well-known politician, at a dinner in Washington said of commercial honesty:

"Commercial honesty is improving. When a man lies to you and cheats you it no longer excuses him to say, 'Caveat emptor.'—It's business—and shrug and smile."

"In fact," he ended, "things have now so much improved that if some multi-millionaires were to lose their fortunes the same way they gained them they'd insist on somebody going to jail."—Washington Post.

CIRCUS POSTERS MAY NOT APPEAR

This morning when the bill posters from the Barnum & Bailey circus attempted to put up bills on the city billboards they were stopped by the West Shore Bill Posting Company, who control the billboard privileges of the city. The trouble arose over the fact that the circus people are only willing to pay 3 1/2 cents a sheet and the bill posting company asked 11 cents a sheet which they claim they received last year. The price according to the bill posting company was originally 15 cents a sheet but has gradually dropped to 11 cents and the company claims that it cannot maintain its boards and only charge 9 1/2 cents a sheet. Unless the difficulties between the circus people and the bill posting company are satisfactorily adjusted the flaming posters of the circus people will not allure any of the people of Kingston.

We arranged to consider the manifestation of the psychic impulse in protoplasmic life and the molecular energy developed by the prismatic transmutation of light waves and kindred topics." ## OF GOSSARD CORSETS

4 DAYS, MAY 6th TO 9th

At a considerable expense we have made special arrangements to have Mrs. Huszagh, special demonstrator of the H. W. Gossard Corset Company, assist us in a four days' demonstration of Gossard Corsets.

This will be the style event of the season in Kingston and it is our desire to have every woman in this city visit our corset department some time during these days.

Styles are different this season—much different and it requires accurate and authentic information if you are to obtain the utmost from your corset, and other wearing apparel.

During this demonstration you will not be importuned to buy. All we ask is that you avail yourself of the information and style news, which is at your disposal. Fitting can be arranged by appointment and should be done so, if possible.

Remember—there is only one place in Kingston where you can be correctly fitted to a Gossard—the original and superior front-lacing corset—and that place is this store.

We shall count it a privilege to serve you on these days. Gossard Corsets at $2.00, $3.50, $5.00, $6.50, $8.50 and up, will be shown. Come with us these four days.

G. A. Hart & Co.
315 Wall Street, Kingston, N. Y.

The season is now in full swing—use OUR supplies and you will enjoy motoring pleasures to the utmost, at the least real cost and with the knowledge that your car is getting the best treatment.

Our oils and greases are the very finest obtainable—they spell long car life and low repair bills. Our tires are of popular proven makes—and of course all our accessories are of like quality.

Compare our prices and QUALITY.

TWO GOOD NAMES ARE BETTER THAN ONE

If the name of a reputable dealer is linked with that of a manufacturer of national reputation in the exploitation of a trademarked article it is a double protection to the consumer.

It puts a two-fold guarantee behind the article sold.

This is where the great strength of co-operation lies.

When dealers and manufacturer link their good names behind the advertising in the local newspapers there is a pull that is sure to bring results.

In such a case two good names frequently stand for great riches. If any manufacturer who desires information regarding the advantages of newspaper advertising will address the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York, it will be glad to answer questions. Booklet on request.

REO THE FIFTH A Super Car, $1,175 Equipped, f.o.b. Lansing Some Reo Tests

No other car builder insists on tests as extreme as does R. E. Olds.

One whole building in the Reo plant is devoted to tests and inspection.

Here is a 35-horsepower car, yet every driving part is tested for 50-horsepower requirements. In every part which meets a strain there are very large margins of safety.

Gears are tested in a 50-ton crushing machine. Springs are tested for 100,000 vibrations. Engines get five long and radical tests, then are taken apart and inspected. Steel is twice analyzed. Every part and device must prove itself under heavy over-tax. And six weeks are spent on each car.

Test cars are run for 10,000 miles to prove out the strength and endurance. They are run night and day on rough roads. Then the tested car is taken apart, and the requirement is that all important parts shall come through almost new.

It Endures

The result is a car that stays new. It saves trouble, upkeep and repairs. In the years to come you will find that it pays to own a super-car. Ask any of the tens of thousands who are driving Olds-built cars.

A Lower Price

This year brings a lower price—$220 less than last year with electric starter. It brings the new streamline body, making a beautiful car. It brings dimming searchlights, over-size tires, one-road control, and many new ideas in equipment.

You will find here the best-built car and the handsomest car ever sold at a modest price. It is so great a value that the spring demand is always twice the factory output.

REO THE FIFTH A Super Car, $1,175 Equipped, f.o.b. Lansing Some Reo Tests

No other car builder insists on tests as extreme as does R. E. Olds.

One whole building in the Reo plant is devoted to tests and inspection.

Here is a 35-horsepower car, yet every driving part is tested for 50-horsepower requirements. In every part which meets a strain there are very large margins of safety.

Gears are tested in a 50-ton crushing machine. Springs are tested for 100,000 vibrations. Engines get five long and radical tests, then are taken apart and inspected.

Steel is twice analyzed. Every part and device must prove itself under heavy over-tax. And six weeks are spent on each car.

Test cars are run for 10,000 miles to prove out the strength and endurance. They are run night and day on rough roads. Then the tested car is taken apart, and the requirement is that all important parts shall come through almost new.

It Endures

The result is a car that stays new. It saves trouble, upkeep and repairs. In the years to come you will find that it pays to own a super-car. Ask any of the tens of thousands who are driving Olds-built cars.

A Lower Price

This year brings a lower price—$220 less than last year with electric starter. It brings the new streamline body, making a beautiful car. It brings dimming searchlights, over-size tires, one-rod control, and many new ideas in equipment.

You will find here the best-built car and the handsomest car ever sold at a modest price. It is so great a value that the spring demand is always twice the factory output.

LAW LAID DOWN BY ALDERMAN MARTIN

Erudite Explanation Why Vetoes Are Invalid—City Clerk Cummings Give Reason Why They Are Valid—Business Sandwiched Between the Two Statements.

The common council on Friday night laid on the table three vetoes of Mayor Canfield concerning resolutions adopted at the last meeting which changed the rules of the council. All the aldermen were present at the meeting.

Residents of Hasbrouck avenue petitioned for a sanitary and storm water sewer on that street to connect either with the existing sewer in Garden or Prince street. Referred to the sewer committee and city engineer.

A requisition from M. Holmes Canfield dealer of weights and measures, for better apparatus was read and referred to the committee on ways and means.

The Kingston Gas and Electric Company sent in a communication calling attention to the gas lights on West Chester street and recommending that an electric light be substituted to be connected up by means of underground cable. Laid over for two weeks on motion of Alderman McCullough.

The mayor sent in a veto disapproving the resolution to change rule 4 of the council as to appointment of standing committees. The second veto was that appointing committees under Alderman McCullough's resolution. The third was against the resolution limiting the superintendent of streets to $10 expenditure. On motion of Alderman Martin the vetoes were laid on the table.

Alderman Martin offered the following communication:

The mayor has attempted to veto certain amendments to the rules of the common council, and the appointment of committees thereunder; these are intentionally but mistakenly referred to as "resolutions" in said vetoes. These vetoes are without warrant in law, and invalid. Apparently the mayor has either wilfully or otherwise, misconstrued the charter in reference to his veto power. The mayor has no veto authority except what is expressly or impliedly conferred upon by the charter.

Section 27 of the charter as amended, provides that, "All bills, orders, resolutions or ordinances which pass the common council, for the expenditure of money or of a legislative or other character shall be presented to him for approval or disapproval." This provision of the charter gives the mayor the power to veto any bill, order, resolution or ordinance of any character, and nothing else.

The word "bills" as used in the charter has been construed by the court as follows:

The word "bills" refers to something in the nature of a legislative act.

Clemon vs. City of Kingston, 37 Misc. 322.

The word "bills" is defined to be a form or draft of law; a proposed or rejected law.

The word "order" is specific and limited in its application; it is a direction by the common council to any officer or member of any city department to carry out such matters as the common council may determine. An "order" is of a special or temporary character.

The word "resolution" in reference to the acts of a common council, is only a less solemn or less usual form of an ordinance, and is included within the term "ordinance."

The word "ordinance" means a local statute or a local law passed by the council, and is limited in its application to acts or regulations in the nature of local laws.

The courts have held that the word "ordinance" as applicable to the action of a municipal corporation, should be deemed to mean the local laws passed by the governing body. The legislature of the state passes laws and makes rules for the government of its procedure. So a municipal corporation passes laws called "ordinances," and enacts rules. The same distinction that exists between laws and rules made by the legislature should be held to exist between ordinances and rules by a municipal corporation.

Armstrong vs. Fisher, 74 Hun. 167, 172.

Section 116 of the charter provides as follows:

"The common council may determine the rules of its proceedings." A rule is defined to be, "the regulation adopted by a deliberative body for the conduct of its own proceedings."

Armstrong vs. Fisher, 74 Hun. 167. A "rule" is that which is prescribed or laid down as a guide to conduct; that which is settled by authority or custom; a uniform course of things.

"Rules of Procedure" are rules made by any legislative body relating to the mode and manner of conducting the business of the body, and for the purpose of making an orderly and proper disposition of the matters before such body; such rules prescribe what committees shall be appointed; upon what subjects they shall act; and in what order certain motions, ordinances, resolutions, bills and orders shall be received and acted upon. Such rules operate nowhere except in the legislative body that adopts them.

The words "rule" and "order" when used in a statute have a definite significance. They are different in their nature and extent. A rule to be valid, must be general in scope and character. An order is specific and limited in its application.

It is laid down as a true principle of law that, "where the charter or law applicable does not prescribe rules for the government of the proceedings of councils, municipal boards, etc., the body is at liberty to determine its own rules of proceedings from time to time as occasion may require. Oftentimes the organic law provides that the council or representative body may adopt its own rules of action." However, the council may abolish, modify or waive its own rules.

McQuillan-Mun. Corp. vol. 11, p. 1,331.

The rules adopted by a common council are not "ordinances." Armstrong vs. Fisher, 74 Hun. 167. "Rules of Procedure" or rules of council are mere rules of practice of the council or governing legislative body itself in its deliberations, passed by virtue of an authority inherent in all associated functionaries, and implied when not expressly given; and establishing the forms under which it acts in the process of passing ordinances, and expressing the corporate will in all matters within the scope of its legitimate powers. These rules cannot be considered ordinances, but are merely forms of procedure for passing ordinances, and exercising the powers of the corporation."

McQuillan on Mun. Corp. vol. 11, p. 1,405.

It is also a well known principle of law that committees are the sole creatures of the council, and are subject at all times to the complete control of the council.

The foregoing legal definitions and principles, where not otherwise stated, are taken from words and phrases judicially defined.

The application of these legal definitions and principles in construing the charter clearly demonstrates that the veto power of the mayor does not extend to the rules of procedure of the common council, nor amendments to the same, nor appointments of committees thereunder. If any other construction were permitted to obtain, it would involve a palpable absurdity in allowing the mayor to dictate in effect the rules to be adopted by the common council for the passage and adoption of bills, orders, resolutions or ordinances, over which he may exercise the veto power.

This veto power manifestly refers to business transacted by the common council in the form of bills, orders, resolutions or ordinances. It does not extend to the machinery, that is the common council for the purpose of transacting such business.

The common council may at any time amend, modify, add to or repeal its rules, by a majority vote of its members, and if it chooses, it may utterly disregard its rules and committees. It has complete control over its committees; may abolish them; reduce their number or add to its committees. These committees are simply agents created for the purpose of deliberating on and more effectually considering bills, orders, resolutions and ordinances.

Under a fair and reasonable construction of the charter, the mayor of the city has no right to veto rules adopted by the common council; amendments made to the same, or committees appointed thereunder; therefore the vetoes filed by him are without sanction in law or effect.

The mayor by these vetoes has unwarrantably attempted to invade the peculiar prerogatives of the council. It is high time that he began to practice his much heralded and vaunted principles of "honesty, economy and economy." He has done nothing since he was inducted into office except to sow seeds of dissension in the common council and the various city departments, and to invade, on every occasion the rights and privileges of the common council. Through his acts, and by his mode of procedure, the city's affairs are in a deplorable state. Thousands upon thousands of dollars of just claims and bills due and owing to the citizens of this city and others, for credit extended to the city, are unpaid, and the city's business almost at a standstill, solely through the contumacious conduct of the chief executive of the city.

The council by these amendments to the rules, and the appointment of committees, which the mayor has attempted to veto, has provided a method whereby the administration of the city's affairs can be reduced, from its present chaotic condition, to a systematic, sound, business basis, and the affairs of government conducted in a proper manner.

In spite of these attempted vetoes, the council should proceed from now on to transact the city's business in an orderly and proper manner in accordance with the rules as amended, and the committees appointed by it.

Alderman Moyle moved that the matter be referred to the "insanity" committee. On motion of Alderman Martin the communication was ordered spread in all the minutes.

Bills and claims against the city were read and referred to the committee on auditing accounts. Pay rolls were reported as audited and warrants were ordered issued.

The street superintendent reported that he had made purchases during the month amounting to $242.95. Filed.

City Engineer Codwise sent in a letter recommending that the Rondout creek be dredged at the mouth of the Hasbrouck avenue sewer in accordance with the agreement made with the Central-Hudson Steamboat Company. Alderman Mitchell offered a resolution, which he said had the approval of the mayor, that a committee of three be appointed to supervise the work. On motion of Alderman Zeeh, the committee will consist of Aldermen Mitchell, McCullough and Moyle.

In response to a resolution of Alderman Martin, offered at the last meeting, that the clerk furnish a list of unpaid bills, City Clerk Cummings submitted a list of bills amounting to $41,453.27. Filed.

The following resolutions were then introduced:

By Alderman Martin, that Washington avenue be topdressed from Hurley avenue to the city line. Referred to the street committee.

By Alderman Moyle, that the seal of weights and measures be empowered to purchase new apparatus. Referred to committee on ways and means.

By Alderman Zeeh, that Abel street be scarified and rolled. Referred to street committee.

By Alderman Mitchell that rule 15 of the council be amended to provide for conduct of members when addressing the chair. Alderman McCullough offered an amendment to the rules providing for the appointment of a sergeant-at-arms. Alderman Myers offered an amendment providing for the removal of any city official on proper charges being filed and proved. All these were referred to the rules committee.

By Alderman Schick, that street superintendent remove trees on Shufeldt street. Carried.

By Alderman Martin, that an are light be placed at Wall and St. James streets, and incandescent light there be removed. Referred to ways and means committee.

By Alderman Mitchell, that Chambers street be topdressed. Referred to street committee.

By Alderman Martin, that Main street be topdressed from Green street to Johnston avenue. Referred to street committee.

Alderman Zeeh inquired what authority the street superintendent had to topdress Prince street. Alderman Martin asked the street superintendent to appear, and when Mr. Van Keuren did appear he was accompanied by Mayor Canfield. The mayor said the alderman could have found out without starting a riot in the council chamber. The reason the street was repaired was that the thoroughfare was dangerous by the change in grade when the trolley company relaid its rails.

Clark Cummings then read the following statement on his position in matters recently before the council: Gentlemen of the Common Council:—

I have been informed that one or more of the aldermen have raised the question of the right of the city clerk to transmit certain resolutions to the mayor, on the grounds that the matter contained in such resolutions was not subject to veto. The resolutions in question being two by Alderman McCullough—one seeking to amend the rules, and the other seeking to appoint committees under provisions of such amendments; and one by Alderman Schlip seeking to amend the rule relative to the committee on supplies.

The city charter as amended in 1911, section 27, says: "All bills, orders, resolutions or ordinances which pass the common council, for the expenditure of money or of a legislative or other character shall be presented to him (the mayor) for approval or disapproval." To my mind this section makes it a duty, as well as a right, of the clerk to transmit all resolutions, orders or ordinances passed by the common council to the mayor; because the words "all" and "shall" are not susceptible of discretionary interpretation by the clerk. The question as to whether a resolution or order is subject matter for a veto cannot be taken into consideration by the clerk, that is a question for the mayor and common council to determine.

It is contended that resolutions amending the rules, are matters solely within the province of the common council and that, moreover, the rules in question were not amended by resolutions but by motions, and the charter does not require motions to be sent to the mayor. This contention is an acknowledgment that resolutions must go to the mayor, to circumvent which, the matter is called a motion. My knowledge of parliamentary law and legislative procedure, however limited, tells me that a motion is word of the mouth that seeks to bring forth or create, state legislative life or mode of procedure some new matter or modification of old matter, or to kill some proposed or existing measure. But, when such motion is acted upon by the common council, the common council, and receives a majority vote thereof, immediately it loses its embryonic or tentative nature and automatically exerts itself in "an order, resolution or ordinance of the common council" as the case may be. So that, when those so-called motions of Aldermen McCullough and Schlip were passed by the common council they ceased to be motions and became resolutions—resolutions which, if you will, which the clerk was bound under the charter, to present to the mayor.

Whether or not matters of this kind are subject to veto, under ordinary circumstances the clerk is not required to pass upon or determine in any way except the veto affects him in the performance of other duties. For example suppose the vetoes of these measures are disregarded by the common council and not repassed by the requisite vote "then of necessity the clerk must determine his line of action, and would have to be guided by his own judgment pending a higher determination in law."

Invoking such judgment therefore he would consider: First, conceding the council has sole authority to formulate its own rules, can it act under such authority while the title of the presidency of the common council is pending in the courts, when such action would tend to disturb the prerogative of such office as it existed when entering court? Can the council attempt by a rule, not subject to action by mayor, to restrain the superintendent of streets or any other official? In other words ought not such restraint be by resolution, order or ordinance, other than rule? Rules are for the orderly and expeditious transaction of business providing methods of formulating law, charter or other provisions, and should not be acts of direct legislation in themselves. Moreover, if rule XI, as amended, should stand it would conflict with provisions of the charter and resolutions and ordinance while the charter says the common council "may limit, regulate or restrain him (the supt. of streets) in the performance of his duties and fix his compensation."

The same section says "the supt. of streets shall have full power to hire, employ and discharge laborers and direct them as to time and manner of the execution of their work," which implies contracts involving expenditures of more than ten dollars, the limit fixed in the "rule" which is plainly in conflict with the charter.

Second—A resolution (not repealed) passed April 7, 1911, gives him certain powers that would exceed the sum named in performance of street work not yet completed. Third—An ordinance for oiling streets makes it incumbent on him to proceed to oil streets which involve larger expenditures than ten dollars. So that, the clerk's determination would be that the amendment to the rule referred to was and is matter for disapproval by the mayor, whose veto should control, unless the matter vetoed be repassed by a vote of at least two-thirds of the members.

Alderman

Bills and claims against the city were read and referred to the committee on auditing accounts. Pay rolls were reported as audited and warrants were ordered issued.

The street superintendent reported that he had made purchases during the month amounting to $242.95. Filed.

City Engineer Codwise sent in a letter recommending that the Round creek be dredged at the mouth of the Hasbrouck avenue sewer in accordance with the agreement made with the Central-Hudson Steamboat Company. Alderman Mitchell offered a resolution, which he said had the approval of the mayor, that a committee of three be appointed to supervise the work. On motion of Alderman Zeeh, the committee will consist of Aldermen Mitchell, McCullough and Moyle.

In response to a resolution of Alderman Martin, offered at the last meeting, that the clerk furnish a list of unpaid bills, City Clerk Cummings submitted a list of bills amounting to $41,462.27. Filed.

The following resolutions were then introduced:

By Alderman Martin, that Washington avenue be topdressed from Hurley avenue to the city line. Referred to the street committee.

By Alderman Moyle, that the sealer of weights and measures be empowered to purchase new apparatus. Referred to committee on ways and means.

By Alderman Zeeh, that Abel street be scarified and rolled. Referred to street committee.

By Alderman Mitchell that rule 15 of the council be amended to provide for conduct of members, when addressing the chair. Alderman McCullough offered an amendment to the rules providing for the appointment of a sergeant-at-arms. Alderman Myers offered an amendment providing for the removal of any city official on proper charges being filed and proved. All these were referred to the rules committee.

By Alderman Schick, that street superintendent remove trees on Shufeldt street. Carried.

By Alderman Martin, that an arc light be placed at Wall and St. James streets, and incandescent light there be removed. Referred to ways and means committee.

By Alderman Mitchell, that Chambers street be topdressed. Referred to street committee.

By Alderman Martin, that Main street be topdressed from Green street to Johnston avenue. Referred to street committee.

Alderman Zeeh inquired what authority the street superintendent had to topdress Prince street. Alderman Martin asked the street superintendent to appear and when Mr. Van Keuren did appear he was accompanied by Mayor Canfield. The mayor said the alderman could have found out without starting a riot in the council chamber. The reason the street was repaired was that the thoroughfare was dangerous by the change in grade when the trolley company relaid its rails.

Clerk Cummings then read the following statement on his position in matters recently before the council:

Gentlemen of the Common Council:

I have been informed that one or more of the aldermen have raised the question of the right of the city clerk to transmit certain resolutions to the mayor, on the grounds that the matter contained in such resolutions was not subject to veto. The resolutions in question being two by Alderman McCullough—one seeking to amend the rules, and the other seeking to appoint committees under provisions of such amendment; and one by Alderman Schick also seeking to amend the rule relative to the committee on supplies.

The city charter as amended in 1911, section 27, says: "All bills, orders, resolutions or ordinances which pass the common council, for the expenditure of money or of a legislative or other character shall be presented to him (the mayor) for approval or disapproval." To my mind this section makes it a duty, as well as a right, of the clerk to transmit all resolutions, orders or ordinances passed by the common council to the mayor; because, the words "all" and "shall" are not susceptible of discretionary interpretation by the clerk. The question as to whether a resolution or order is subject matter for a veto cannot be taken into consideration by the clerk, that is a question for the mayor and common council to determine.

It is contended that resolutions amending the rules, are matters solely within the province of the common council and that, moreover, the rules in question were not amended by resolutions but by motions, and the charter does not require motions to be sent to the mayor. This contention is an acknowledgment that resolutions must go to the mayor, to circumvent which, the matter is called a motion. My knowledge of parliamentary law and legislative proceedings, however limited, tells me that a motion is word of mouth that seeks to bring forth or create into legislative life an amendment, proposition, some new matter or modification of old matter, or to kill some proposed or existing measure. But, when such motion is acted upon by the creative body—the common council—and receives a majority vote thereof, immediately it loses its embryonic or tentative nature and automatically evolves itself in "an order, resolution or ordinance of the common council" as the case may be. So that, when these so-called motions of Aldermen McCullough and Schick were passed by the common council they ceased to be motions and became resolutions—or "orders" if you will, which the clerk was bound under the charter, to present to the mayor.

Whether or not matters of this kind are subject to veto, under ordinary circumstances the clerk is not required to pass upon or determine in any way except the veto affects him in the performance of other duties. For example suppose the vetoes of these measures are disregarded by the common council and not repassed by the requisite vote "then of necessity the clerk must determine his line of action, and would have to be guided by his own judgment, making a higher determination in law."

Invoking such judgment therefore he would consider: First, conceding the council has sole authority to formulate its own rules, can it act under such authority while the title of the presidency of the common council is pending in the courts, when such action would tend to disturb the prerogative of such office as it existed when entering court? Can the council attempt by a rule, not subject to action by mayor, to restrain the superintendent of streets or any other official? In other words ought not such restraint be by resolution, order or ordinance other than rule? Rules are for the orderly and expeditious transaction of business providing methods of formulating into law, charter or other provisions, and should not be acts of direct legislation in themselves. Moreover, if rule XI, as amended, should stand it would conflict with provisions of the charter and resolutions and ordinance not repealed. For instance while the charter says the common council "may limit, regulate or restrain him (the supt. of streets) in the performance of his duties and fix his compensation," the same section says: "He (the supt. of streets) shall have full power to hire, employ and discharge laborers and direct them as to time and manner of the execution of their work," which implies contracts involving expenditures of more than ten dollars, the limit fixed in the "rule" which is plainly in conflict with the charter.

Second—A resolution (not repealed) passed April 7, 1911, gives him certain powers that would exceed the sum named in performance of street work not yet completed.

Third—An ordinance for oiling streets makes it incumbent on him to proceed to oil streets which involve larger expenditures than ten dollars.

So that, the clerk's determination would be that the amendment the rule referred to was and is matter for disapproval by the mayor, whose veto should control, unless the matter vetoed be repassed by a veto of two-thirds of the members.

FLY CAME READED IN INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

INFANTILE paralysis is one of the most baffling diseases the medical profession has to deal with.

Although confined largely to children, it sometimes visits adults. Diphtheria follows within a week after infection and sometimes as little time as forty-eight hours. High fever, delirium, convulsions mark its progress.

The Rockefeller Institute was founded in 1911 mainly to arrive at some effective or curative agent to fight the plague. It has received so its establishment gifts of the oil magnate aggregating more than $3,000,000. The little grew out of the death of John D. Rockefeller, one of Rockefeller's grandchildren, who died of this awful disease. The child's death awakened within a grandparent the determination to use his wealth to chase the hidden and mystic causes of the disease.

Fountain of Cheerfulness.

Be cheerful; do not brood over fond hopes unrealized, until chain, link by link, is fastened on each thought and wound round the heart. Nature intended you to be the fountain spring of cheerfulness and sociability, and not the traveling monument of despair and melancholy.—Helps.

ARMY PLOT TO OVERTHROW HUERTA

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, May 2.—Confirmation of an army plot in Mexico City to overthrow President Huerta was received here today in code dispatches from the Mexican capital. They intimate that the conspiracy was balked by Sir Lionel Carden, the British minister, who warned Huerta that his army, headed by Gen. Blanquet, was planning his downfall, and even his assassination, if necessary.

According to those messages, there was a long session of Huerta's cabinet at Mexico City last night at which the president accused Blanquet of having started the conspiracy and served notice on his war minister that he would have to give a pledge that he would render support to the government or he would be arrested.

The cabinet meeting was held at Chapultepec castle, around which soldiers and it is said that Blanquet gave the pledge demanded, recognizing that Huerta held the whip-hand.

Mexico City, May 2.—The action of President Huerta in forcing Portillo Rojas, minister of foreign affairs, to resign, is believed to be due to information secured by the president that his cabinet officer was scheming with General Blanquet, minister of war, to overthrow the government through the semi-official explanation as given out by officials today that friction had arisen over the mediation proposals made by the Latin American nations.

The fact that the cabinet committee sent to demand Portillo's resignation did not include Blanquet was taken as a pointed confirmation that Huerta has broken with his war minister, formerly his closest friend. The committee was made up of Adolfo de La Loma, minister of the treasury, Jose M. Lozano, minister of Communications and Ignacio Alcocer, minister of the Interior. They secured the resignation immediately and so notified President Huerta.

The work of the ministry of foreign relations is practically at a standstill today as Esteva Ruiz, the sub-secretary also resigned, refusing to serve any one but Portillo. Senor Ruiz said today: "The resignation of Senor Portillo was caused by a difference of opinion between him and President Huerta regarding the mediation of Argentina, Brazil and Chile. The foreign minister proposed that an envoy be sent to Washington to act in an informative capacity toward the representatives of the nations intervening, which the president did not approve."

The three men most prominently mentioned as candidates for the ministry of foreign affairs are Federico Gamboa, Senor Lozano and Senor Emilio Rabasa.

Mrs. William Hogan entertained some thirty ladies, who make up one of the circles of the Ladies Aid Society of the St. James M. E. Church, at her home on Wall street on Thursday afternoon. A delightful social time was enjoyed and during the afternoon light refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. David Winne, Maiden Lane.

Webster, on Manning Boulevard, on Thursday evening, April 30, at six o'clock. The Rev. H. Clarke Colebrook, pastor of the Memorial Baptist Church, performed the ceremony. There were no attendants. During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Hobson left for a southern wedding trip. Among the out of town guests were Dr. and Mrs. Hawkins and Mrs. Ida Hawkins of Brooklyn; Mrs. T. D. Lewis of Kingston, and C. Bragg-Bragg.
Mrs. Lillian M. Bragg of Lloyd, widow of William Bragg, who was killed by a Central New England train near Lloyd two years ago, has become the bride of her brother-in-law, Abram H. Bragg. The couple were married on Wednesday in Poughkeepsie by the Rev. Morley P. Williams. They are now in New York on a bridal trip and upon their return will make their home at Lloyd. Mrs. Bragg's first husband, brother of her present husband, was killed while asleep on the tracks of the Central New England after he had worked many hours over time as a flagman on the road. His widow brought suit against the railroad and at the first trial she was awarded a verdict of $8,000, but this was set aside and a new trial granted by the appellate division. The second trial resulted in a verdict of $5,000, and this verdict was also set aside and the case will probably be taken to the court of appeals. Abram H. Bragg stood by his sister-in-law in her litigation with the railroad company, during the course of which he fell in love with her, proposed marriage and was accepted.

Society Play Great Success.
St. Joseph's Hall held a representative gathering of the society folk of Kingston on Friday evening, some time before the curtain rose for the presentation of "The Elopement of Ellen," as given by the members of the Monday Afternoon Sewing Club for the benefit of the Day Nursery. The hall as a theatrical auditorium is very attractive and the elegant gowns of the women, and the charming appearance of the members of the club who acted as ushers, carrying baskets of souvenir programs with an exceedingly quaint and appropriate sketch, the work of Miss Ethnor Chipp, added greatly to the picturesqueness of the occasion. The orchestra, special musicians from the Kingston Symphony orchestra under the direction of Mr. Malschneider, entertained the audience with several pleasing selections before the curtain rose upon a very pretty picture, the morning room at Mrs. Ford's home, at 8 a. m. The farce itself, "The Elopement of Ellen," is humorous to a degree in its many complications, and in brief is as follows:

Ellen, Mrs. Ford's maid, has suddenly eloped with the coachman, leaving the establishment of the charming and very new society matron, short one valuable servant on the eve of the arrival of guests for their first visit to the newly married host and hostess. The long distance phone secures from the matron the promise of a new maid, whom Mrs. Ford expects to install before her guests learn of her predicament. Robert, Mrs. Ford's brother, offers the usually comforting brotherly advice while waiting to greet his chum, Max Ten Eyck, one of the guests. In spite of excellent planning, the other guest, Dorothy March, engaged to Max, arrives before the maid, and John Hume, the rector of St. Agnes, also appears at an early hour and is added to the breakfast party. Just at the psychological moment, June Haverhill, an old sweetheart of Robert's, practically swears to the summons for a maid, and "just for a lark" assumes the role, being known only to Robert and Max, both of whom conceal her identity. The rector loses his heart to Dorothy and the situation becomes exceedingly involved through the three acts, but ends happily of course. The opening scene with Thomas A. Horton as Richard Ford, a devoted young husband, and Miss Dorothy Koepen as Molly, his wife, at once captivated the audience. Mr. Horton did the proud young husband to perfection and Miss Koepen was a delightfully important, anxious and graceful young matron. Roger Loughran as Molly's brother and the chum of her guest, Max, not to mention being in love with the "disguised maid," was very realistic in his part. Max Ten Eyck, the guest, chum and by an inheritance, forced engaged to Dorothy March, did the anxious, yet honest maid part in really artistic manner, giving to the closing scene with its bit of love making, a real dignity. Miss Dorothy Schoonmaker, engaged to Max, also performed, was very captivating, especially as seen by the rector, among the roses. No wonder that gentleman lost his heart to her. Her indignation at the character of her engagement, and later her awakening to the fact that the man for himself was quite another thing were splendidly portrayed. June Haverhill, "Wellesley 15," who is doing some special work for economics courses during the summer, as taken by Miss Sarah L. Horton, was a difficult character, cleverly, naturally and charmingly presented. Miss Horton was equally good as the disguised maid or the welcomed guest and later sweetheart of brother Rob. One of the best characters of the farce was "John Hume, the rector," as taken by Christopher Snyder, in "clerical" Mr. Snyder was "the real thing" as far as appearance was concerned, and his nervousness, especially when calling on the women of his parish, his "confined to his notes" speeches, and his appreciation of the need of a clergyman marrying, especially if he could secure for the head of his "mother's meetings," etc., such a woman as Dorothy March, kept the audience in gales of merriment. The freshness and naturalness of amateur performance coupled with professional skill under the coaching of Miss Mary E. Noone, made the entire play a most delightful success from the raising of the curtain to its final drop, and the audience were enthusiastic in their applause of the various members of the cast. At the close of the play, the floor was quickly cleared for dancing, which was enjoyed to a late hour. During the evening a light buffet supper was served and the entire affair was voted one of the most thorough and delightful social events of the season. There could be no doubt that a goodly sum was netted for the Day Nursery.

Queen Esther Banquet.
The Queen Esther Circle of the St. James M. E. Church enjoyed the annual banquet of the circle on Friday evening in the parlors of the church. There were fifty-two young ladies present, and the tables with their decorations of pink and white candles, and the charming faces gathered about the "festive board" presented a charming picture. Miss Blanche Montanye presented Miss Florence Dedrick, president of the society, as toastmistress of the evening, and Miss Dedrick gave a fine toast to the "Old Officers of the St. James Queen Esther Society." Mrs. Angle, superintendent of the society, responded to the toast, "New officers and girls of our Queen Esther," Miss Blanche Vosburg to the toast, "To The Flag," and Miss Anna Wynkoop to the toast, "Little Margaret." A fine menu was served by Mrs. Farnell and at the close of the banquet the party repaired to the home of Miss Marion Everett on Wall street, where a pleasing program of readings, piano and violin music was given and a cordial social time enjoyed.

ULSTER LOST GAME AT POUGHKEEPSIE

Good hitting coupled with costly errors in the first inning gave Poughkeepsie the game with Ulster Friday at Eastman Park. The score was 10-7. Johnson was on the mound for Ulster at the beginning of the game and when the smoke of Poughkeepsie's artillery had died away, a score of seven runs had been tallied against his team. Johnson was replaced by Culliton, who allowed Poughkeepsie but three runs for the remaining eight innings. The spectators were given an exhibition of Ulster spirit when in the ninth inning with the score 10-2 against them the locals batted in five runs which, however, were not enough to win the game.

Ulster clouted the ball for more hits than Poughkeepsie and if it were not for their poor fielding they would have won the game. The locals again showed speed on the base line, stealing ten bases. Webster played his first game this year from five trips to the plate, besides stealing three bases. Blair, Poughkeepsie's pitcher, was the star for his team, battling well and fanning two men. Halpin knocked a three-bagger in the fourth. In the first inning Traver reached first by means of Downer's error; stole second and came home on Terwilliger's error of Halpin's grounder. Halpin stole second and after Daly struck out scored when Quintaro hit to center. Then by an exhibition of error on Ulster's part crossed the plate before Ulster settled down and ended the remaining batters. In the first of this inning Ulster scored a run. After Terwilliger struck out Downer reached first by Galvan's error. He stole second and then scored on Webster's hit to right field. Peleman and Peyer struck out. Second inning—Culliton singled over second base and stole second. Hallinan struck at three mighty blows: Barretted to Quintaro and Kiernan followed Hallinan's example. Traver was out. Culliton to Terwilliger. Halpin walked; stole second and came home when Daly singled to left. Daly went to second on the throw home and was caught off base by Culliton. Quintaro hit a Texas leaguer but Galvan grounded to Culliton. Score P. H. S. 8; Ulster, 1.

In the third inning neither team scored although Peleman, Webster and Peyer each registered a hit. The fourth inning was made interesting by Hallinan's single and Halpin's three-bagger to right, but no one crossed the rubber. Ulster retired in quick order in the fifth. Terwilliger grounded to Blair, who fanned, and Peleman walked. Blair to Quintaro. Quintaro was fanned by Culliton. Galvan safely into first field and stole second. Bromhead repeated Quintaro's stunt. Blair singled to center and Galvan scored. Marshall struck out. Ulster added to its score in the sixth. Webster singled to right and went to second on Culliton's came home when Halpin singled. Culliton was up at while trying to steal second and Halpin was out. Munson to Quintaro. Poughkeepsie did not tally in this inning, but in the seventh Bromhead crossed the plate after he had hit over short. He scored when Blair singled. No scoring was done in the eighth but Ulster made it interesting for Poughkeepsie in the ninth. Hallinan swatted the pili center for a two-bagger. Galvan caught Barret's fly. On a passed ball Hallinan reached third. Kiernan alked and stole second. Terwilliger fanned. It was up to Downer to do the trick. He did with a cle hit to left. Hallinan and Kiernan crossed. Downer again stole two bases. Peleman walked, stole second and both he and Downer scored when Webster hit to center. Webster stole second and third and when Peyer singled went home. Culliton ended the joy when he flied to Traver. The score:

A slight fire occurred in the Transport Hotel on Friday afternoon while employees were fumigating one of the rooms. A small fire was caught fire and made quite a smudge of smoke. ## BURGLARS ENTER TURCK RESIDENCE

The residence of William J. Turck at No. 116 Fair street was entered on Friday night while the family was away from home. Entrance was effected by breaking a pane of glass in a rear window. What the clues are the police would not reveal but they seem to be confident that it was done by someone who was acquainted with the lay of the land.

ENLIVENED THE PLAY.

Sentiment and Impromptu Humor at a Moving Picture Show.

"Where we went last night," said a frequenter of moving picture shows, "there was a scene in one of the films showing a man and a girl, young lovers, kissing. She was a pretty girl and he was a fine, manly, young fellow, and of course everybody was deeply interested in the picture. But at the precise instant that the lovers' lips met some man in the audience exploded with a gigantic sneeze, whereat the whole house blew up with spontaneous hilarious laughter."

"In this picture scene there was a third figure, that of a man who had seen the lovers meeting and who when he saw them kiss turned away from them to smile. He was, to be sure, smiling over the lovers; but as he looked out on the house at this moment with that smile on his face he seemed like a real man smiling in appreciative understanding of what had just happened in the audience. At the sight of his smiling face the audience again blew up. But, of course, the pictures kept on moving all the time, and in half a minute the audience had once more settled down to look on again at the pictures in the usual quiet."—New York Sun.

Unabashed.
Years ago Isidore de Lara used to sing his own songs at concerts to his own accompaniment. The most popular of them was "The Garden of Sleep." Once—so runs the story—Mr. de Lara was "Garden of Sleeping" at a private house, and he was immensely annoyed by George Moore, who went on insistently talking after the song had begun. Mr. de Lara sang a few bars and then sprang indignantly to his feet.

"Mr. Moore," he said, "I was singing the other day before the Prince of Wales, and he spoke, and I stopped."

"Well, my dear chap," replied Mr. Moore calmly, "he survives."

Mr. de Lara had humor enough to join in the general laugh.—London Answers.

Yes, He Was All Right.
George R. Sims' account of forgetting his own address and having to look it up in the telephone directory was capped by a friend of mine, says a writer in the London Sphere, who told a story of a man trying to tell him from what he had been suffering. "I have been very ill," he said, "with—with—with—" and could get no further. And then suddenly it came to him, "with loss of memory. But," he added, "I'm all right now."

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTS REVIEW

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, May 2.—No matter what the outcome of the Federal invasion will be it is a certainty that most of the organized major league clubs will have to struggle along under a top heavy payroll for two or three years longer.

When the Feds were flitting so outrageously with the organized baseball stars late in the winter the organized magnates got busy and tried to out-hire the Feds. In other words, they met the big offer of the Feds, and in some cases went even higher, and then signed their men up for two, three or four years.

Practically every player in organized baseball whose contract expired last season signed up one of those long term contracts. And the magnates hoping to back the Federals at the end of this season, got many of the players whose contracts do not expire until the end of the 1914 season to sign up new contracts that carried them along for two or three years in addition.

This was the case with the Brooklyn Dodgers, the Giants, the Boston Braves, the Phillies, Red Sox, Naps and practically all the other major league clubs.

Those contracts are legal and bind the magnate to pay the big salaries they call for. The magnate cannot "duck" the obligation. And because he can't it's certain that until those contracts expire—which won't be until 1916 and 1917, he's got to pay out each year in salaries from $425,000 to $500,000 more a year than he ever paid before.

"During the period of Federal activity the players held the whip hand," says Chance. Many players worth only $3,000 a year, at the most, held up their club owners for $4,000 and $5,000. They got more money than they were worth because the owners felt it was a safer plan to agree to this unjust demand than to let them go to the Federals.

But the era of reckoning for the players is coming. When the baseball war ends and the existing contracts have expired, salaries will go down with a bump. They have reached the crest—the very highest in history. And this condition is almost ruinous to the club owners. But the club owners will have their day, too, just like the players are having it now.

"The era of high salaries for ball players soon must come to an end. When it does you can depend on it that the players who are drawing $5,000 and $6,000 this year won't get anything like that figure. They'll be lucky to get $3,000. The magnates must retrieve the losses that have been occasioned by the Federal war and you may depend on it that when they, instead of the players, are once again in control of the situation, they will do the retrieving with a vengeance.

There is no doubt but what Chance knows whereof he articulates. When the magnates get control of the situation once again they'll even things up for the hold-up game that most of the ball players played last winter.

But that won't prevent the majority of the players from having a lifelong laugh. At least 50 per cent of the players who were parties in the hold-up game will be ready for the discard when their long term contracts expire—even before. And they'll always be able to chuckle over the fact that in the winter of 1914, when they had begun to fear a terrific cut in their 1914 salary, or even being shoved off to the minors, they were able to shake down their employers for a salary almost double that which they ever had received before.

Lay's Sanitary Delivery Wagon.

What is probably the finest appearing delivery wagon in the city was received by Jacob A. Lay Friday. The vehicle was built according to Mr. Lay's own ideas and is sanitary in all that the term implies. It is absolutely dust proof. Inside the covered top is a fair-sized refrigerator for keeping meats cool and wholesome during warm weather. The wagon is painted a light blue, and on both sides is Mr. Lay's name in large gold letters. With this sanitary wagon and the use of paraffine paper for wrapping up meats, Mr. Lay's patrons are assured of cleanliness and healthfulness in the buying and handling of meats.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any dress on receipt of 10c in silver stamps to The Freeman Pattern Department, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state size wanted.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTS REVIEW

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, May 2.—No matter what the outcome of the Federal invasion will be it is a certainty that most of the organized major league clubs will have to struggle along under a top heavy payroll for two or three years longer.

When the Feds were flitting so outrageously with the organized baseball stars late in the winter the organized magnates got busy and tried to out-bid the Feds. In other words, they met the big offer of the Feds, and in some cases went even higher, and then signed their men up for two, three or four years.

Practically every player in organized baseball whose contract expired last season signed up one of those long term contracts. And the magnates hoping to back the Federals at the end of this season, got many of the players whose contracts do not expire until the end of the 1914 season to sign up new contracts that carried them along for two or three years in addition.

This was the case with the Brooklyn Dodgers, the Giants, the Boston Braves, the Phillies, Red Sox, Naps and practically all the other major league clubs.

Those contracts are legal and bind the magnate to pay the big salaries they call for. The magnate cannot "duck" the obligation. And because he can't it's certain that until those contracts expire—which won't be until 1916 and 1917, he's got to pay out each year in salaries from $425,000 to $500,000 more a year than he ever paid before.

"During the period of Federal activity the players held the whip hand," says Chance. Many players worth only $3,000 a year, at the most, held up their club owners for $4,000 and $5,000. They got more money than they were worth because the owners felt it was a safer plan to agree to this unjust demand than to let them go to the Federals.

But the day of reckoning for the players is coming. When the baseball war ends and the existing contracts have expired, salaries will go down with a bump. They have reached the crest—the very highest in history. And this condition is almost ruinous to the club owners. But the club owners will have their day, too, just like the players are having it now.

"The era of high salaries for ball players soon must come to an end. When it does you can depend on it that players who are drawing $5,000 and $6,000 this year won't get anything like that figure. They'll be lucky to get $3,000. The magnates must retrieve the losses that have been occasioned by the Federal war and you may depend on it that when they, instead of the players, are once again in control of the situation, they will do the retrieving with a vengeance.

There is no doubt but what Chance knows whereof he articulates. When the magnates get control of the situation once again they'll even things up for the hold-up game that most of the ball players played last winter.

But that won't prevent the majority of the players from having a lifelong laugh. At least 50 per cent of the players who were parties in the hold-up game will be ready for the discard when their long term contracts expire—even before. And they'll always be able to chuckle over the fact that in the winter of 1914, when they had begun to fear a terrific cut in their 1914 salary, or even being shoved off to the minors, they were able to shake down their employers for a salary almost double that which they ever had received before.

Lay's Sanitary Delivery Wagon.

What is probably the finest appearing delivery wagon in the city was received by Jacob A. Lay Friday. The vehicle was built according to Mr. Lay's own ideas and is sanitary in all that the term implies. It is absolutely dust proof. Inside the covered top is a fair-sized refrigerator for keeping meats cool and wholesome during warm weather. The wagon is painted a light blue, and on both sides is Mr. Lay's name in large gold letters. With this sanitary wagon and the use of paraffin paper for wrapping up meats, Mr. Lay's patrons are assured of cleanliness and healthfulness in the buying and handling of meats.

Good Opinion of Himself.

Sydney Smith, once entering a drawing room in a fashionable mansion in the West end of London, found it lined with mirrors on all four sides. Finding himself reflected in every direction, he remarked: "Ah, I see. There appears to be a meeting of the clergy here and there seems to be a very respectable attendance!"
